MARKET REVIEW

Global REITs have delivered two consecutive months of pedestrian returns with September closing 10bps lower taking year-to-date returns to 5.4% in USD. US Equities (S&P 500) closed 2.1% higher while European Equities (Euro Stoxx 600) pushed ahead closing 3.2% higher. US 10-year Treasury yields rose 22bps over the month to close at 2.33%, driven in the main by the Federal Open Market Committee (FOMC) meeting that confirmed that balance sheet normalisation would commence this October and inferred that a further interest rate hike was on the cards for 2017. This was vindicated by a revised Q2 GDP estimate of 3.1% y/y. However, 33 000 jobs were lost during September compared to the expectation of approximately 80 000 jobs being added, but much focus was on wage growth which accelerated to 2.9%.

German Chancellor Angela Merkel won a sixth term in office but investors showed concern over unexpected gains made by right wing parties that are anti-immigration. At the end of Q3 Catalonia (Spanish province where Barcelona is located) held a referendum vote with 90% of voters choosing to exit Spain and be an independent state. The Spanish government and monarchy has deemed the vote illegal which resulted in violent clashes between the police and voters, thereby sending Spanish equities and REITs around 3-10% lower in the first week of the results.

Global REITs now trade at a 4.2% forward yield in USD, at a 224bps spread over global bonds that trade at 1.95% (weighted) in the 10-year space. The long-term average spread is 150bps which gives investors an approximate 70bps 'buffer' against rising bond yields. Last months' 22bps rise in US and UK bonds in particular did not result in a drop in REIT prices, thereby making a case for the valuation argument. With global developed economies lifting, we expect good property fundamentals to hold resulting in FFO/earnings growth of 5-6% per annum over the next 2 years with low forecast risk to this number. Europe continues to surprise on the upside and other key markets such as Sydney (office), West coast USA (all sectors), UK logistics showing an acceleration in rental growth. We see USD total returns of 7-8% from current levels as being achievable.
