MARKET REVIEW

Global REITs (as per EPRA/NAREIT Developed Rental Index Net TR, USD; "Benchmark") closed the month down 4.5% in USD (+0.4% in ZAR) underperforming global equities, US equities, and global bonds and which achieved total returns of -2.4%, -2.5% and -3.3%, respectively. UK and Canadian REITs generated the best performance by region, achieving a total return of -1.8% and -2.3%, respectively. Hong Kong and US REITs lagged, returning -13.2% and -5.6%, respectively.

Economic data for the US remains strong, including a higher-than-expected core personal consumption expenditure deflator of 4.7% in January, a drop in the unemployment rate from 3.6% to 3.4%, and better than expected retail sales growth of 3.0% m/m. This suggests underlying inflation could remain persistently high and require further monetary policy tightening from the Federal Reserve and a higher possibility of a "hard landing" (sharp downturn in economic activity). The US 10-year treasury yield increased from 3.5% to 3.9% by month end, putting pressure on risk assets, including listed property. Sectors considered recession-resilient, like self-storage (+1.8%) and gaming (-1.2%), outperformed, while more cyclical ones, like hospitality, underperformed at -7.3%.

In the listed property space, Hong Kong retail property company Link REIT announced a $2.5bn rights offer at a 29% discount to the unaffected share price. The REIT plans to use the proceeds to repay existing debt and pursue investment opportunities while reducing LTV from 27% to 18%. A subsidiary of Canadian asset manager Brookfield, Brookfield DTLA Fund Office Trust Investor, has defaulted on $784m worth of loans related to a pair of office towers in California. A low occupancy rate coupled with higher interest costs resulted in insufficient income to cover debt payments. At the beginning of March, UK industrial REIT Tritax Big Box REIT sold three assets to Copley Point Capital and Brookfield for £125 million, reflecting a blended net initial yield of 4.6%. US triple net lease REIT, Realty Income acquired a portfolio of 415 convenience stores in the US for $1.5bn at an estimated cap rate of 6.9%.

We expect 6-7% earnings/funds from operations (FFO) growth which should normalise to around 5-6% in the following two years. Balance sheets are in good shape (except for continental Europe) with average leverage of 33%, so valuation write-downs do not post widespread financial risk across the sector. Global listed property currently trades at a forward dividend yield of 4.4%, an 87bps positive spread to global bonds, which is lower than the long-term average spread of c.210bps. Considering all, we believe low double-digit USD total returns of 12-14% are reasonable over the next 12 months.
