MARKET REVIEW

Global REITs (as per EPRA/NAREIT Developed Rental Index Net TR, USD; "Benchmark") closed the month down -0.53% (+3.58% in ZAR) underperforming US equities (S&P 500) and global equities (MSCI World Index) which achieved returns of +2.38% and 1.31%, respectively. REITs however outperformed global bonds (FTSE World Government Bond Index) which achieved total returns of -1.04%. By region, Hong Kong REITs finished tops, closing the month +3.23% higher followed by US REITs which achieved a +2.69% return. UK and European REITs were laggards, returning -3.69% and -2.36%, respectively.

The J.P. Morgan Global Composite Output Index reached a 15 year high of 58.5 in May before dropping to 56.6 in June. Conversations shifted away from the strength of the recovery and the impact of higher inflation, to questioning if global growth will stall because of the spread of the Delta variant of Covid19 or if the spike in inflation is indeed transitory. The bond markets have appeared to have priced in the latter scenarios with bond yields falling from 1.61% at the start of the month to 1.47% (and falling further to 1.30% at the beginning of July).

June was less about the reopening trade or "Covid casualties" vs "Covid beneficiaries" which dominated Q1, but rather about quality of earnings. REITs with the strongest pricing power and well managed balance sheets in sectors such as self-storage (+7.0%) and manufactured homes (3.8%) outperformed, while fundamentally challenged sectors such as Hotels (-0.50%), offices (-1.0%) and student housing (-4.1%) underperformed.

Corporate activity in June was dominated by the US healthcare sector with large cap REIT Welltower acquired the 86-property seniors housing portfolio for $1.6 billion from Holiday and peer Ventas acquiring small cap peer New Senior for $2 billion. After skipping debt payments in February, US mall REIT Washington Prime Group filed for Chapter 11 bankruptcy which allows the company to continue operating while negotiating with creditors. US Office REIT, Kilroy Realty has made its first acquisition outside of the west coast buying Indeed Tower located in Austin, Texas for $580 million. Post month end, UK student Housing REIT GCP Student Living confirmed that it has received a series of non-binding proposals to acquire the company. No details of pricing were announced but the news lifted the share price 20% with peers Unite Group and Empiric Student Property also benefitting. US hotel REITs Host Hotels and Pebblebrook Hotel Trust made acquisitions in Florida for $200 million and $270 million, respectively. Both acquisitions focus on the drive-to leisure sector which remain in demand as these assets are less at risk of a potential reduction in business travel.

Global REITs have re-rated significantly over the second quarter of 2021 and now offer investors a dividend yield of 3.2% - this is a 219bps discount to global bonds versus a 10-year average of 234bps. We expected FFO growth to bounce back from -0.8% in 2020 to 5% in 2021, with further acceleration to 6-7% growth in 2022 as fundamentals recover. Although we have argued before that the sector can justifiably trade deeper than its longer-term average when earnings growth is accelerating above its long-term rate, as is the case now, we now believe the sector is expensive. As vaccination programs in North America, UK and most of Europe have been successful, economies will bounce back better than initially expected. However, the reopening or reflation trade is quite mature, thus limiting significant upside driven by earnings upgrades from these levels. We believe a slight correction in prices is due, and see total returns trending sideways or delivering low single-digit returns from these levels over 12 months.
